"WHITE WAY LIGHTING" WILL BE DISCUSSED THIS EVENING

Able Speakers Will Present Views on This Important Feature

DIRECTORS HOLD A MEETING

The Forum meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held this evening at eight o'clock in the Municipal building. The subject is "White Way Lighting." Every citizen of Charleroi ought to be present tonight and hear or take part in the discussion.

C. D. Schafer of Pittsburgh, representing the West Penn Power company, will be one of the speakers of the evening. Also Mr. Davidson, of Pittsburgh, illuminating engineer of the Macbeth-Evans Company, will give a talk, illustrated by slides, on White Way Lighting. He will especially deal with the scientific and technical end of installing the electric lights.

The Charleroi Iron Works will have a representative who will have some interesting things to say in regard to the erection of the posts.

It is understood that while there will be two or three short addresses, that much of the evening will be given over to an open discussion in which every member of the Chamber of Commerce and others will all take an active part.

The Board of Directors held their regular weekly meeting on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The budget of the Chamber of Commerce was worked out and accepted by the Board for the remainder of the year 1921. A great deal of time was spent in discussing a big social event to be given probably on or about the first of April, at which time we shall have two or three of the best speakers in the country, as well as good music and plenty of eats. If the present plans work out this will be one of the biggest social events ever held in Charleroi. It will be an event to look forward to and one to look backward upon.

PREDICT REDUCTION IN BUILDING WAGE SCALE

A reduction of 20 per cent in wages for skilled labor in the building trades was predicted on Thursday by Joseph Soffel in an address before the Builders' Exchange in the Chamber of Commerce at Pittsburgh. Mr. Soffel presented figures showing a 20 per cent reduction in the price of living. On this account wages must have a corresponding drop, if the building of homes is to proceed, he said. It was announced that the tradesmen will submit a report soon on their decision to reduce their own wages or maintain them at war figures.

This is the Anniversary of Charleroi's Natal Day

Today is the 31st birthday anniversary of Charleroi. On the 4th of March, 1900, the first sale of lots took place in the town, and the scene on that memorable occasion was far different from that which greets the eye of the traveler today.

The office of the land company was located on the spot where the Wilbur hotel now stands, and it was besieged all day with hundreds of people anxious to buy lots, or by those who were completing their purchases. Maps of the town site were much in evidence, and people wandered here and there with one of these guides in their hands, with a view of making a purchase, and endeavoring to secure a location which would give them the greatest return for their investment.

Gum boots were the principal and popular footwear among purchasers at that time, for the fields of the McLean farm were quite soft from the winter snows and rains, and it was necessary to be fortified with good footgear ering in order to make any kind of progress. The initial sale of lots on that day was beyond the expectation of the promoters, and the following summer the town, as well as the buildings of the Plate Glass works semed to spring up with amazing swiftness.

Since that memorable date Charleroi has progressed with remarkable swiftness, and proven itself well worthy of the appellation conferred upon it by the late Col. Chill W. Hazzard, the Monongahela Republican, of being the "Magic City."

Today the municipality, through the newly-organized Chamber of Commerce, is taking on a new lease of life, and hopes are running high for civic improvements which have been long delayed.

SHRINERS' CARAVAN AT MONONGAHELA

A preliminary meeting looking toward the formation of Monongahela Valley Caravan, No. 7, A. A. O. N. M. S., was held at the office of Geo. W. Scott, Esq., in Monongahela Thursday evening. At this meeting representatives were present from Charleroi, Donora, Bentleyville and other towns in this section of the valley, as well as from Monongahela, at which time a preliminary organization was formed by electing George W. Scott, chairman, Charles S. McLean, treasurer, and W. M. Watson of Donora, as secretary.

Another preliminary meeting will be held in about two weeks at which all preliminary plans for the organization of the Caravan will be completed. Petition blanks for membership will be placed in circulation at once, and efforts made to secure a large list of signers for the new Caravan, which will have its headquarters in Monongahela, and where the new organization will be instituted.

This new Caravan will embrace all the territory between McKeesport and Brownsville, and will number in its membership hundreds of Shriners who are members of Syria Temple of Pittsburgh. The date of installation will be named later.

LAST LEAGUE GAME AT McKEESPORT TONIGHT

The Charleroi High school basketball team will go to McKeesport this evening for the closing game of the league season. Next Tuesday they will play the California Normal team on the floor of the latter, which will close the season for the present year.

FATAL SHOOTING AFFRAY IN MONESSEN

John Watson, aged 30, colored, was shot and mortally wounded at 12:35 o'clock Thursday afternoon at a house in Monessen, his assailant being Sarah Johnson, aged 21, also colored. Watson was rushed to the Charleroi-Monessen hospital, where he died two hours later. Official notice of the death was sent to Coroner Greenlee and to District Attorney Erwin Cummins at Washington.

The altercation took place at 83 Schoonmaker, at noon yesterday. Watson, who is said to have been a bad craracter, was having a controversy with one of the women of the house, and was abusing her, when the Johnson woman came to her rescue. Watson started after the Johnson woman, when both grabbed for guns. The Johnson woman proved to be the quickest and shot Watson through the groin.

J. M. McNalty, a foreman in the Steel products plant, who was passing the place at the time, heard the altercation, and stopped. Just as he looked into the house the woman fired and shot Watson. He rushed in and took charge of the woman and the two revolvers and started to the police station with her. She was turned over to the police and said she fired the shot in self defense.

In the meantime Watson was brought to the hospital, where he died two hours later from hemorrhages.

Walter Wilbur was a visitor in Monongahela with friends today.

Rev. G. G. Kerr, of Canonsburg, was a visitor in Charleroi this morning.

RIVER TRAFFIC SHOWS HEAVY DECREASE FOR PAST MONTH

Idle Mines in Upper Valley Causes Heavy Shrinkage in Coal Shipments

MANY STEAMERS ARE NOW IDLE

Traffic on the Monongahela river for the month of February showed a decided slump from the figures of January, due to the depression now affecting the industrial activities of the valley. Many of the mines in the upper valley have been idle for some time, and this condition is reflected in the report to be submitted by Lock Master Sweeney, of Lock No. 4, to the United States Engineers' Office at Pittsburgh.

A new form of report has been adopted by the government, by which all traffic must hereafter be reduced to a tonnage basis, instead of the bushel standard for coal and coke and board cubic measure for timber. This will require considerable more book work in the future, and the initial report is somewhat delayed in its completion.

However, the total shipments of coal for February are shown to be 540,200 tons, or approximately 22,111,000 bushels of coal. This is a decrease from the January shipments of 7,121,000 bushels, these figures indicating that production of coal has fallen off to a considerable extent since the first month of the year. In addition to the coal there were 561 tons of steel products sent through the local lock, while there were 1070 lockings.

Government officials expect no increase in the shipment of coal until there is a better and more improved tone in the industrial world, and under conditions which will require the full operation of mines, particularly along the upper valley. Only a few boats are in operation, the Carnegie line steamers being more active than any of the others, this being necessary in order to fill the requirements of the by-product plant at Clairton. Outside of these steamers but few other boats are in operation, and will not resume until there is a greater demand for coal.

ANOTHER USE FOR BRUCETON MINE

The battered experimental coal mine at Bruceton, Pa., which has been used to try out every sort of new explosive, new digging machinery and new mining theory is to become a storage vault for helium, the non-inflammable gas. The Bureau of Mines is making great quantities of this new gas for balloons and derigibles at Fort Worth, Texas, and engineers have decided to line a part of the experimental mine with copper and store the gas away until a need for it develops.

WOMEN'S SOCIETIES ATTEND MEETING

At the service in the M. E. church last evening the women's organizations occupied the middle tier of pews. This goodly representation of women expressed loyalty to the services being held and great interest in their success. The pastor used as his text Psalm 106:15—"And He gave them their request, but sent leanness into their soul." The thought enforced is that God allows men to have their way when they refuse to accept Jesus Christ and salvation, but they receive leanness of soul as a result of their conduct.

This evening Mrs. J. V. Potter who has charge of the M. E. mission work at Newkirks, in Bentleyville, will speak and conduct a consecrative service.

The Sunday School and Home Guards will attend the service this evening.

At the conclusion of the public service the Official Board will meet.

GOOD PRICE PAID FOR FARM ACREAGE

As an indication of the value of land in the Ginger Hill district, where the National Mining company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, proposes building a mining town, a deed filed for record of date of February 16, 1921, shows that the purchasing company paid to Mrs. Elizabeth Coulson the sum of $119,030.61 for 396.7687 acres of surface. This is at the rate of $300 an acre, which is considered a very good figure for farming land.

"SABBATH DAY" NOT SUNDAY

Modern Writers Display an Amazing Carelessness in Their Misuse of the Words.

In English there is not a more definite word than sabbath, yet it is used with an amazing carelessness as a synonym for Sunday. The writers and translators of the New Testament use sabbath correctly, says a writer in the Brooklyn Eagle.

It is always Hebrew and in no instance is it associated with the New Testament dispensation—now universally known as Christianity. Indeed the apostles were severely rebuked by the Jews for breaking the sabbath. Christians cannot break the sabbath, for they do not have it to break.

Sabbath and Sunday are observed on separate days, but this is not necessary, as astronomy shows that the identity of days from year to year is impossible; since the year and day are incommensurable. The leap years show that any given date varies a day; even this does not correct the dates, as other corrections—the centurial leap years—become necessary. There is a still deeper reason for discarding the severity of the sabbath, namely, our Sunday week is encounted thousands of years older than the book of Genesis. Evidence is very strong that it was founded on quartering the sidereal month—the "true month." Long before anything even approaching astronomy arose man noticed that the moon slowly moved into another group of stars each night, and by rough eye measurement, completed her revolution in 28 days—"the 28 mansions of heaven" of the Chinese and Hindus.

COVERED HEADS IN CHURCH

Before the Year 1661 Men Did Not Remove Their Hats During Religious Services.

About 1661 an agitation commenced to have men remove their hats in church—Pepys makes gentle fun of it. The custom was first to remove the hat to cover the eyes in prayer, and later it was taken off altogether.

The introduction of the wig helped the custom—for it proved difficult to keep one's hat on over a tousled mass of false curls. This also led to large hats with plumes going out of style.

Then, instead of wearing hats indoors, men went to the other extreme, and often carried them in their hands when out of doors. The Puritans in England continued to wear their broad-brimmed hats, however, indoors and out.

Men's hats and clothing were changed with the French Revolution; wigs went out, and then with the rise of Napoleon, dress became military in style. In 1815, during the Restoration period, arose the "stovepipe hat," and breeches, at the same time began to be worn to the ankle.

How Old Armor Was Made.

Ancient armor cost money. A complete iron suit of exclusive design might "stick" the purchaser for as much as $1,000, which was a great sum in those days. Baronial gentlemen, however, had their own professional armorers to turn out such metal garments. The common soldiers went to battle with nothing better to protect them than leather jerkins and steel caps. Recently samples were taken from a dozen of ancient pieces and put through a chemical and microscopical examination by experts in order to find out something about how the stuff was made. It was found that all the pieces thus tested were made from very pure wrought iron, converted into steel by the old "cementation" process. The original iron was produced much like our modern wrought iron. It was carbonized, hammered into sheets and the sheets welded together. The whole was then hammered into shape while heated and plunged into water, thus producing the final hardening.

Religion in Everyday Life.

The widespread impression that religion is a thing of life apart and not an essential part of profitable life is at the bottom of all our social problems. Were the people taught, not merely preached to on Sundays, but taught in school from infancy to old age, that to deal justly, to be kind and generous, and to revere the powers above earthly powers, our social affairs would soon assume, or approximate, the conditions contemplated by the Master. In these more enlightened times men want to know the value of religion as a personal asset in life rather than a promised assurance of peace and comfort after death. An occasional sermon on the value of religion as a personal asset in social and business life would be helpful to many toilers.—Erasmus Wilson.

TIGHTEN UP.

Former Senator Bereridge says the United States is the most propaganda-ridden country in the world. It is a fact that the last four years have seen this country more propaganda-ridden than ever before in its history. Where possible, every Governmental agency has been perverted into a distributor of Democratic doctrine. Furthermore, an unaccountable leniency was shown by the Wilson administration toward the purveyors of socialistic and bolshevist propaganda, who have been allowed practically the unrestrained freedom of the mails. A tightening up all along the line will mark the administration of the executive departments in the next four years. The people will be presented with facts and permitted to form their independent judgments.

The Chicago Tribune expects such grammatical slips as "it's me" and "don't do it" (do it not) to become respectable in spite of the purists. Undoubtedly it is hard for many to say "It is I," but why should it be hard for anybody to say "does n't it" thus giving a singular subject the required singular verb?

It is proposed in the University of Virginia to address professors as "Mister" unless their doctor's degree was obtained by the study of medicine. Proper distinction would seem to require this, but in more need of the reformer's attention are the Southerners who are "Colonels" and "Judges" by courtesy only.

Bernhardi not only announces that there will be war between England and the United States, but advises Americans not to count on any help from Germany. Bernhardi is the same war-mad German who fell down so ingloriously in his predictions as to the result of Germany's war for world domination.

Nature makes haste to repair even the ravages of war. In England and Wales the birth rate of 1920 was the highest on record, being double the death rate. Even in supposedly unpromising France there was in six months an excess of 68,000 births over deaths.

A Paris newspaper laments that few Frenchmen know the distance between Springfield, Mass., and Springfield, Ill. If there are a "few" Frenchmen who know, France can make a better showing than America itself in this connection.

The effort to find a satisfactory feminine equivalent for "dark horse" is said to be causing much perplexity in certain quarters, and yet every school girl knows what a lady horse is called.

This season the Snow King seems to make amends for his past performances. Even from the alps is reported the warmest winter in 87 years.

Any species of nettles is unpleasant enough to handle roughly, but some of the foreign ones are most formidable plants. Several of the East Indian forms are truly dangerous, for, after the first itching sensation has passed away it is often followed by that of [illegible] and the pain increases to such an extent that after hours—and sometimes days—the patient is seized with symptoms like those following influenza and lockjaw, while sometimes death results.

Trivial Accident Brings Disaster.

The gypsy moth has caused a great deal of trouble in this country, and much money and energy have been spent in the effort to exterminate it. The trouble started when a French naturalist named Trouvelot, residing in the town of Malden, Mass., left a paper box containing gypsy moth eggs on a window ledge and it blew off. That was in the early eighties, and he was making experiments with various kinds of caterpillars as silk spinners.

High Blood Pressure Curable.

High blood pressure can be overcome in most cases by exercise, says the Canadian Life. This cause of the many rejections in life insurance is not usually a permanent disorder. It can be cured by exercising, gently at first, and increasing up to a reasonable amount. Clients who have been rejected on this account should be advised to take up some moderate form of exercise, and in the course of a few months they may be acceptable.

Tides Move Big Building.

The historic Tower of London moves four times daily as the tides of the Thames river ebb and flow. The movement is most pronounced in the part nearest the river. The movement is due to the fact that many tons of water penetrate under the foundations with the rising tide which movement has the effect of moving upward the whole mass of the tower.

Windfall.

A windfall is an unexpected legacy or money dropped as it were from the sky. The saying originated when the English nobility were forbidden by the tenure of their estates to fell the timber, all the trees being reserved for the use of the royal navy. Such trees as were blown down, however, were excepted, hence a good wind often proved a veritable Godsend.

Real Meaning of Old Saying.

The Englishman's misuse of the aspirate has twisted an old saying in a peculiar fashion. Our forefathers were wont to declare that a person was "as mad as an atter." This has now become "hatter" and most people imagine it has something to do with a manufacturer of hats. As a matter of fact the original "atter" meant "adder."

Tree Marvelously Preserved.

Discovery has been made in the Holman iron mine near Taconite, Minn., not far from the source of the Mississippi river, of the trunk and branches of a prehistoric tree in an excellent state of preservation, with the cones on it. The tree is not petrified and the wood is perfectly sound.

Bears and Telephone Poles.

Every telephone and telegraph pole in the remote districts of Norway has to be constantly watched on account of the bears, which have a mania for climbing the poles and sitting on the cross bars, swaying backward and forward until the pole falls.

True Greatness.

A man's true greatness lies in the consciousness of an honest purpose of life, founded on a just estimate of himself and everything else, and a steady obedience to the rule which he knows to be right.—George Long.

Lacked Faith in Woman Chauffeur.

INGALLS' TRIBUTE TO GRASS

Beautiful Word Painting of Kansas Statesman That Is Recognized as a Classic.

[illegible] in the sunshine among the [illegible] and dandelions of May, [illegible] wilder in intelligence than the [illegible] remains of that mimic wilderness, our earliest recollections are of grass; and when the sinful fever is ended and the foolish wrangle of the market and forum is closed, grass heals over the scar which our descent into the bosom of the earth has made, and the carpet of the infant becomes the blanket of the dead. Grass is the forgiveness of Nature—her constant benediction. Fields trampled with battle, saturated with blood, torn with the ruts of cannon, grow green again with grass, and carnage is forgotten. Streets abandoned by traffic become grass-grown like rural lanes and are obliterated. Forests decay, harvests perish, flowers vanish, but grass is immortal. Beleaguered by the sullen hosts of winter, it withdraws into the impregnable fortress of its subterranean vitality and emerges upon the first solicitation of spring. Sown by the winds, by the wandering birds, propagated by the subtle agriculture of the elements which are its ministers and servants, it softens the rude outline of the world. It bears no blazonry of bloom to charm the senses with fragrance or splendor, but its homely hue is more enhancing than the lily or the rose. It yields no fruit in earth or air, and yet should its harvest fail for a single year, famine would depopulate the world.—From a "Collection of the Writings of John James Ingalls."

THEY'LL GET YOU SOME WAY

City Scalawags Hard to Beat, According to Testimony of Visitor From Jimpson Junction.

"If them infernal scalawags up there in Kay See can't get you one way they will another!" disgruntledly asserted the gent from Jimpson Junction, who was just back from a brief stay in the Big Burg. "Pretend to do you a favor and then skin you alive! Tother night in my room in the hotel I was tending to my own business when a feller in the next room yelled what in all this and that was coming to?

"I'm nailing my clothes to the floor, if it's any of your by-gosh business!' I hollered back. 'I'm a reliable sound sleeper, and don't aim to have my best suit stole while I'm slumbering.'

"'Why, you pea-green yokel!' he yelled back, 'what will you do if the fire department goes roaring by in the middle of the night and you can't yank on your clothes and run after it?'

"'By cripes! I hadn't thought of that!' says I. 'I would be in a dickens of a fix wouldn't I? I'll claw my clothes loose from the floor and run the risk of having them stole. I wouldn't like to miss a good fire. Much obliged to you, sir!'

"Well, I done so, and went to sleep, and as far as I know the fire department never made a run the whole night long. And next morning my clothes were gone, and so was the feller in the next room."—Kansas City Star.

Ribbon Fish's Oddities.

"The ribbon fishes," said John T. Nichols, head of the department of recent fishes at the Museum of Natural History, according to the New York Times, "are perhaps the least known of the larger marine species. They are elongate, flattened from side to side with a manelike fin on the back. Specimens are 15 to 20 feet long, being from 10 to 12 inches deep, and about an inch or two broad at their thickest part. They have big eyes and small mouths."

Very few specimens ever come to light and these are usually washed up on some shore or are found floating at the surface in a dead or dying condition. The larger ones are known to grow to be 20 feet or so in length and very likely attain a considerably greater size, but this is a matter of pure conjecture. Young individuals of some of the species but a few inches long are not rarely met with near the surface.

Persons born between October 23 and November 22, when the sun is in Scorpio, have a courageous, loving disposition. Have natural dignity and great persuasive ability. Make friends readily. Have more power over minds of others than over their own impulses. They are aggressive and executive, and usually fitted to overawe others. They are capable of great things if they can be induced to stay at one thing long enough—but are impatient of results. They are well adapted for government jobs.

Unlucky Birthday.

Those born on Saturday (Saturn's day) will have much difficulty in acquiring money and will have to work hard. This may make them melancholy and avaricious and inclined to run into debt. They should guard against carelessness in dress and the company of evil books. They will be subject to disease of legs and knees. They will have much luck in finding hidden treasure; will be apt to be uncomely and unpopular.

And He Would Not Smile.

"That head waiter would smile and take your last dollar."

"Probably not. He wouldn't accept as little as a dollar under any circumstances."

WOMAN BEGAN LONG DISPUTE

Shakespeare-Bacon Controversy Had Its Origin in Book Published by American Author.

The long-drawn-out controversy over the authorship of the Shakespearean plays had its origin in a remarkable book written by an American woman, Delia Bacon, a native of Tallmadge, O., with a preface written by her friend, Nathaniel Hawthorne. She was a woman of intense application and capacity for esoteric study and her book was the product of a lifetime spent in the feverish pursuit of her hobby. Her book was entitled "The Philosophy of the Plays of Shakespeare Unfolded," copies of which are now rare, as it has long been out of print.

The book is written in a very laborious style, difficult to read. Some of the sentences are three to four hundred words long, but the entire work shows evidences of intense study of the works of the poet and a masterly knowledge of the history of Shakespeare's period.

The intense obsession with which she pursued her theories brought her life to a tragic end. Becoming convinced that Shakespeare's secret was hidden in his tomb at Stratford, she went to reside there to confirm her researches. She was found one midnight at the tomb, muttering incoherently, and evidently making preparations to open the tomb in search of concealed manuscripts which she believed had been interred with the body of the poet, beneath the cryptic inscription, "Good friend, for Jesus' sake forbear to dig the bones inclosed here." She was removed to an asylum.

DAZZLED OLD LONDON TOWN

Becky Wells, Beautiful Madcap, Well-Known Character During the Reign of George III.

Becky Wells, beautiful English actress, journalist and author, was born in 1759, married at eighteen, and a few months later saw her husband desert her for her bridesmaid. She went to London and won success by her beauty when she went on the stage. She took up with Edward Topham, an eccentric, and they established a newspaper that thrived on scandal.

Becky took to wearing furs in summer and muslins in winter, which perhaps stamps her as a woman in advance of her age. She hired hackney coaches to drive her to Oxford or Cambridge for her health, and her vagaries were the talk of the town.

She imagined that she was irresistible and took it into her head to infatuate George III, the dull king whose only redeeming virtue was his apparent faithfulness to his wife. She was thrown into jail by her creditors, and there she infatuated a Moor, son of the prime minister of Morocco, who had been sent to prison for contempt of court. They were wedded in jail with festivities that lasted a week and which cost the bridegroom $2,500. Her husband, Joseph Sumbel, then secured his release by paying his brother $50,000 and he also paid Becky's creditors and took her with him.

Tricking Fate.

Every Hindoo must have a son to perform the proper rites in his behalf so that he may be released from purgatory after death, says Asia Magazine. Especially cursed, therefore, is he whose fate it is to be sonless. One such, a Brahmin, propitiated the god Vishu and obtained a boon. He asked for a son, but, since a son was not in the man's fate, Vishu refused. Twice this happened, but the third time the Brahmin asked that his merriments might be shared by gods and men alike. This was granted. He then went home, locked his door and, with his wife, began to sing and dance. Thereupon, all the gods and men, by the terms of the boon, were compelled to sing and dance with him, and the business of the universe was brought to a standstill. "Stop," begged the gods. "Only when you grant me a son," answered the Brahmin. And he had his way.

The room in which palms and geraniums are kept should not be allowed to get cooler than 40 or 45 degrees. The palm should be placed in a partly shaded spot, but never where it may come in contact with gas or cold draughts. It should never be placed in the direct rays of the sun. The leaves should occasionally be sponged with fishoil soap and warm water. It should not be too well watered, and perfect drainage is necessary to successful culture. The geranium requires plenty of sunlight and its roots should be kept moist. It should be sprayed with tepid water occasionally to keep the foliage bright and green and prevent dust from lodging on the leaves.

Seeking a Paragon.

"Here's an advertisement for a wife."

"She must be young, rich and beautiful, I suppose?"

"No, but the requirements are almost as hard to meet. The advertisement specifies that she must be 'under forty, immune from the movies and house broken.'"—Birmingham Age Herald.

After hearing the evidence the Justice fined him $1 and costs, and gave him five days to abate the nuisance.

FINAL SESSION FOR THE ROUND TABLE

The Principal and Teachers' Round Table of Washington County will hold its final meeting for the present school year in the public meeting room of the court house at Washington on Saturday, March 12. Officers for the coming year will be chosen at this session. An interesting program has been prepared for the final session, one of the features being an address on "Summer School Work" by Prof. T. L. Pollock, superintendent of the Charleroi public schools.

It is stated that 84 per cent of the business failures of 1920 were firms that did not advertise. How they managed to live until that year is not explained.

PREFERRED TO LIVE ALONE

Water-Hog Chose Lonely Existence in English Pond to the Confinement of a Menagerie.

Two years ago a large and intelligent water-hog from South America, tired of the local British menagerie which exploited him and his brethren, crept away, and took up his abode in a pond at Manning's heath, Sussex. There he lived a hermit-like existence, swimming and diving, or scrambling along the fringe of the pond by way of exercise, and harming no man, until quite recently a young foal disputed his claim to the lake. The three-feet-long water-hog had the impudence to chase the foal, and suffered death at the hands of a gamekeeper for his misdemeanor. The hog's life in the Sussex pond is regarded as all the more strange because few of his species have survived the English climate. Such creatures abound on the river banks in South America, and, while possessing the skin and bristles of an ordinary hedgehog, can swim and dive like a fish, often remaining under water for lengthy periods. They have long, curiously molded teeth, which enable them to grind to a pulp the vegetable matter that forms their sustenance and allow it to pass down the very narrow passage of their throat. They bark and growl like dogs, and are altogether unpleasant animals when roused. The Manning pond specimen was regarded by the villagers as quite harmless, however, and they deplored its untimely end.—London Mail.

COURTESAN OF LOWLY ORIGIN

Lady Hamilton Rose to High, if Anomalous, Position, Solely Through Her Great Beauty.

Lady Hamilton, who, during the latter part of the Eighteenth century, was a world figure, and whose activities did much to change history, was born of a blacksmith and a cook. The time was to come when she was bedfellow with the queen of Naples, and close friend to kings and princes, as well as the wife of the British ambassador to Italy, and mistress of the great Nelson; but it was as Emma Lyon that she began her career of mastering power and authority by her woman's beauty and wiles.

While walking along the street at the age of sixteen she saw an old schoolfellow in the hands of a press gang that was about to convey him aboard a British ship bound for forced service. She went to Captain Payne, commander of the ship, and begged his release. The captain agreed—on a condition. The girl accepted it and gave up her honor to save her friend. The captain paid dearly for his act shortly afterward, as the young beauty went about the town charging up bills of enormous amounts and he was forced to settle.

Pioneers' Prairie Bunk.

The necessity of finding a more convenient and comfortable place than the ground upon which to sleep produced the "prairie bunk." This one-legged bedstead, now a piece of furniture of the past, was improvised by the pioneer in a unique manner. A forked stake was driven into the ground at a proper distance from the corner of the room and upon it poles, usually of hickory, were laid reaching from each wall. These poles, where they touched the walls, rested in the openings between the logs or were driven into auger holes. Upon these poles slats of clapboard were placed, or linden bark was interwoven from pole to pole. Sometimes an old-fashioned "cord bed" was made by using basswood bark for the cord. On this framework the housewife spread her straw tick or piled the luxurious mound of her homemade feather bed. Such a sleeping place was usually known as a "prairie bedstead," but sometimes it was called a "prairie rascal."—Mildred J. Sharp, in the Palimpsest.

Thermometers Grow Old.

Even thermometers become old, and consequently inaccurate with age mercurial instruments reading too high and spirit instruments too low. In the former case the bulb appears to shrink, thus forcing the quicksilver too far up the stem. This gradual shrinkage is supposed to be due to the fact that the external pressure on the bulb may be considerably higher than the internal pressure—the air as far as possible having been removed before the glass is sealed.

On the other hand, the spirit thermometer is sealed with the bulb covered in a freezing mixture, in order to lock up in the glass as much air as possible. The instrument thus starts with the internal pressure which in time appears to be reduced either by expansion of the glass under the internal pressure or by leakage.

Beard and Mustache Defended.

Dr. Arjan Das, in the Indian Medical Journal, deplores the fashion for cropped hair which is gaining in India. He says hair is an additional ornament for a rich woman, and often the only ornament of the poor. The shaving of mustache and the epilation of nasal hairs is bad, as they prevent the introduction of even minute particles of dust entering the nose. Worse still is the increasing practice of shaving the beard, as this protects the throat and hinders dental neuralgia. Shaving has become the fashion both with Hindus and Mohammedans, though a bearded man among the latter is shown more respect.

When to Leave People Alone.

It's a mark of generalship to know where the other fellow is touchy. It is an evidence of mastery to be able to keep hands off when you have such fine opportunities for prodding him up a bit. It's human nature to "put it to a fellow" when you have the chance. You argue he would do it to you if he could. Yet what's the gain in such conduct? Any one can do the mean petty things that ruin peace and disrupt routine. The world has thousands in it who are feeling themselves the continual butt of ridicule. Everything that is done seems to be a direct attack on their conduct. They are constantly miserable and seeking for some one to tell their troubles to. They are mad at themselves most of the time. The wise man lets them alone even when he has a chance to even up some of their pettiness.—Grit.

Monarch Enthusiastic Dog-Lover.

One of the greatest griefs of King Henry IV of France arose each morning when he got up, over his inability to decide which dog or group of dogs could accompany him during the day. He never received a foreign minister without having two or three, or even a dozen of the dogs rolling about his feet or lolling on his lap. When the minister's words did not please him he would slyly punch one of the pets, and in a minute all would be in an uproar so loud that it would be impossible for the angry visitor to proceed. His greatest expression of friendship consisted in bestowing a dog upon the man or woman who had pleased him, and he never gave away a dog without kissing him a number of times as if he was parting with a beloved child.

Art in A. D. 650.

"The Book of Kells" gives the world a glimpse of one of the most magnificent and mysterious books in existence. Of undetermined age, "The Book of Kells," a marvelously illuminated manuscript of the Four Gospels, was old in 1006, when it was stolen from the Abbey of Kells (Co. Meath), stripped by the thieves of its jewel-studded binding, and buried. After some months it was recovered. Some 339 leaves of the manuscripts survive at Trinity College library, Dublin, and 24 of these, reproduced in the new volume, give an idea of the extraordinary command of design and wonderful color of the old Irish illuminator, whose work may date from 650 and is certainly not later than 850.

Chicago Does Not Boast of This.

The real meaning of the word Chicago is one that residents of that proud city are more than anxious to keep under cover. It came from an Indian word "shegang," and when it was adopted it was believed to mean "mighty" or "strong." In a way it did, but not in the way the founders of the city believed. It was "mighty" or "strong" only in relation to unpleasant smells and was first used to designate the skunk. Later it was given by the Indians to a wild onion as violent in its smell as those of garden cultivation. When the French first came they found the Indians had still further enlarged the meaning of the word to include the thunder and the voice of the Great Spirit.

Relics of Famed Irishman.

Hanging in the great hallway of the present mansion of Sir Robert Hodson, Hollybrook, Ireland, where Robin Adair lived, played, sang verses, is his harp. Robin Adair was a successful wine merchant in Dublin. He it was who built Hollybrook, where he entertained lavishly. The original song of "Robin Adair," which dates back to the year 1730, was written to commemorate a visit he paid to some sporting friends at Duckstown, near Dublin. In spite of his convivial habits, Robin Adair lived to a green old age, and died in Dublin, 1737. In addition to his harp, two of his wine glasses, which held a quart of wine each, are still preserved in this same mansion.

Following is by Samuel Johnson: "The truth is that no man is much regarded by the rest of the world. He that considers how little he dwells upon the condition of others will learn how little the attention of others is attracted by himself. While we see multitudes passing before us of whom, perhaps, not one appears to deserve our notice or excite our sympathy, we should remember that we, likewise, are lost in the same throng; that the eye which happens to glance upon us is turned in a moment on him that follows us, and that the utmost which we can reasonably hope, or fear, is to fill a vacant hour with prattle, and be forgotten."

Old-Time Horn Books.

One of the few specimens of horn books still in existence has the alphabet in large and small letters, the vowels and consonants, the Lord's Prayer and the Roman numerals. The first line in horn books was always known as the cross line, as a picture of the cross ended it, symbolic of the theory that the end of learning is piety. The horn books were generally about nine inches long and five inches wide. One of the reasons for their disappearance is that they formed handy weapons in school-boy disputes, and even oak boards break when brought into contact with the bullet heads of youth.

Something to Go For.

"Is Charley Grabcoin taking much interest in his father's business since he became a member of the firm?" "No, but he began to keep regular office hours when Mr. Grabcoin hired a new golden-haired stenographer who lisps."

Brotherhood Among Men.

In every period and in every society there exists an understanding of the meaning of life which represents the highest level to which the men of that society have attained—an understanding defining the highest good at which that society aims. The religious perception of our time, in its widest application, is the consciousness that our well-being, both material and spiritual, lies in the growth of brotherhood among all men—in their loving harmony one with another.—Tolstoy.

Cow Had Novel Ride.

Motorists of Williamsport, Pa., waiting at a railroad crossing for a train to pass, found out the reason why the pilot of a locomotive is called a cowcatcher. On that part of the engine a middle-aged cow sat, taking in the view, if not enjoying the ride. When the motorists signaled the engineer the train stopped and the cow was assisted from her perch, none the worse for her experience. Where and how she was picked up, the train men did not know.

Growth of Brazil Nuts.

The Brazil nuts are contained in a round, woody pericarp, or seed vessel, almost the size of a man's head, within which there are many of the seeds or nuts. These are packed so closely that it would be quite impossible to replace them once they were removed.

Women of Nepal.

The women of Nepal have no purdah system, the false modesty of covering the face with a veil. They freely move, and share the burden of maintenance of the family. They often wear a kind of short skirt and bodice made of cloth from their looms.

As We Feel About It.

Quintessence.

The ancient Greeks, like modern chemists, said there were four elements or forms in which matter could exist—fire, air, water, and earth. The The Pythagoreans added a fifth, which they called ether, more subtle and pure than fire. This element, which flew upwards at creation, and out of which the stars were made, was called the fifth essence, hence quintessence or "fifth-essence" means the most subtle extract of a body that can be procured.

A Waterfall.

Where water takes its first leap from the top, it is cool and collected, and uninteresting, and mathematical; but it is when it finds that it has got into a scrape, and has farther to go than it thought for, that its character comes out; it is then that it begins to writhe, and twist, and sweeps out, zone after zone, in wider stretching as it falls, and to send down the rocket-like lance-pointed, whizzing shafts at its sides, sounding for the bottom.—John Ruskin.

Accurate Balances.

The British mint contains some wonderfully accurate and sensitive balances. In one of the rooms there are two large pair of scales kept in glass cases, suspended on pulleys. The pair used for weighing out silver will record the weight of a postage stamp, but even more sensitive is the balance one used for gold. It will show the difference in weight between two absolutely identical pieces of paper, one of which contains a signature and the other does not.

Gold Found Almost Everywhere.

Gold, though the most precious of metals in common use, is by far the most widely distributed. There is hardly any country on earth, from the equator to the poles, where it is not found. It is dry-blown out of the scorching sands of western Australia, blasted from the cliffs of frozen Spitzbergen and washed from the Arctic beach at Cape Nome.

Lines to Be Remembered.

Coats of Arms.

A coat of arms is a relic of the armorial insignia of medieval times and was embroidered upon the cloth worn over the armor to render the knight conspicuous in battle. All the knights of the middle ages had such coats of arms and many of them have been retained by their descendants.

Live So as to Avoid Falling.

Not all fruit falls for the same reason. Worms may account for much of the falling, but there are a thousand reasons that might be found for the fall. Sometimes the stem does not seem to be able to hold the fruit. The fruit itself seems to be all right only it won't stay on the tree until maturity. It's like the moral grip of men. Without any apparent reason they just let go of their moorings and down they go. Once down it doesn't take long to begin the processes that always proclaim the fallen fruit. So the part of wisdom is to so husband the fruit that it will not fall. So with life. The only safe and sensible thing is to safeguard the youth so that they will not weaken and fall. This is by no means easy, for so many do not wish to be safeguarded. Yet it's the only way to keep fruit suitable for the best markets.—Exchange.

Make Love and Live Long.

The act of love-making has a direct influence on the heart and blood, says a medical correspondent. It stimulates the working capacity of the former organ, and keeps it up to concert pitch. As a result, the blood circulates with greater strength, and every part of the body is accordingly strengthened. Love-making, moreover, has a very distinct influence in stimulating the working of the liver. Patent medicines would have to go out of business to a considerable extent if the world were more generally given to the art of making love with genuine feeling. Perhaps the most striking proof of the immunity of lovers from one form of ill, viz., colds and chills, is afforded by the fact that a pair of Cupid's devotees will sit on a damp bench for hours and take no harm.

Origin of "Poltroon."

A curious bit of history is hidden in the word "poltroon," now so commonly used to designate a coward. It started out in life as "pollice truncus," a Latin phrase meaning one who had been deprived of his thumb. In the ancient days when bows were the leading weapon of the soldier the thumb was a most essential part of the hand, for without it the archer could not hope to draw the bow with anything like good aim or exert his arm's strength to pull back the powerful six-foot bows. To avoid military service many a man chopped off his own thumb or got his wife to perform the act for him. In time the man who did this bit of self-exemption became known as a "poll trun," and the last change to its present usage is easily traced.

A number of well-recorded cases of cures wrought through dreams, have recently been reported. There is the case of Jane Cotteral, for instance. She was a poor woman, who was afflicted with cancer in its most painful form. Being given up as incurable by her doctor, she was in despair, when she dreamed one night that she saw a man who gave her something that brought about an almost instantaneous cure. On awakening she was so impressed that she visited the house she had seen in her sleep, found the man and, using the prescription he recommended, got rid of the disease completely.

Adhesive From Snails.

Many of the larger snails have at the extremity of their bodies small white bladders filled with a gelatinous substance. The Scientific American claims that this is the strongest adhesive known for the repairing of porcelain, glass, etc. The substance is applied thinly to both sides of the fracture and the broken piece is tied firmly together so that all is held in place. A rather longer time for drying should be given than in the case of ordinary adhesive so as to allow the natural glue to acquire the greatest degree of strength.

Small Farms in the Barbados.

There are nearly 10,000 peasant proprietors in Barbados owning five acres or less, the great majority having not more than half an acre. They usually work as laborers on the estates in addition to farming their little plots of land. It is stated that if a black man has as much as one acre of land he can make a living out of it. A large number also rent little plots of land from the big estates. Barbadoans produce more than enough tropical vegetables to supply their own wants and export some to Trinidad. Sea Island cotton is successfully grown.

Magellan's Great Voyage.

Magellan was of Portuguese birth, but when the king of Portugal refused to back his enterprise he obtained aid from Charles V and sailed under the Spanish flag. He left Spain in September, 1519, with a fleet of five vessels, but it was not until October, 1520, that he found one of the entrances to the strait. The distance from ocean to ocean at this point is 325 miles, and the journey took 38 days. Emerging into the Pacific, Magellan boldly continued his westward course across uncharted seas, and finally reached the Philippines. There he was killed.

"Shivered His Timbers."

It was the difference between the British oak of which their old-time battleships were made and the wood of the French and Spanish vessels that led to this saying. When a cannon ball hit a British ship it made, owing to the hard, close-grained structure of the wood, a clean hole, which a man with mallet and plug could easily stop up. When, however, a British ball hit a French or Spanish ship, made of more fibrous oak, it smashed the wood into splinters—shivering his timbers, as the old sea dogs used to say.

Purveyor to the People

419 Fallowfield Ave. 301 Crest Avenue 300 Ninth Street Fourth St., Lock No. 4.

Men are inconsistent. They complain if their wives don't read the newspapers and keep up with important events, and yet few of them read the fashion notes.—Baltimore Sun.

Eads Bridge Has Three Spans.

The Eads bridge, which connects St. Louis, Mo., and East St. Louis, Ill., is a three-span, steel arched structure. The central span is 520 feet in the clear and the side spans 502 feet.

For a Waxed Floor.

Marred spots on a waxed floor can be removed by rubbing very sparingly with alcohol. Then apply wax thinly and evenly and rub in with a soft cloth.

Yea, Verily.

It's a poor rule that doesn't work both ways and that is as true of the Golden Rule as any other.—Boston Transcript.

During the reign of Louis XVI kissing was very popular at court. Every dance movement ended with every man kissing his partner, and no gallant thought of greeting a lady friend without kissing her on the lips. The king, himself, enjoyed this to the full, and always kissed every pretty girl at any dance or entertainment he attended. At social affairs it was a custom for courtiers to watch Louis, and when he was in high good humor ask such favors as they wished.

Vilna's History.

Vilna, the pleasant little city on the Viliya, has an interesting history. It was here that long years ago, the Poles kept the sacred fire of paganism burning on the castle hill night and day. The city has lived through some strenuous ages fighting Teutonic knights, Tartars and other medieval Bolsheviks—not always successfully. With one eye on culture, even in the most gory days, Vilna still keeps the volumes—some 200,000—of her famous suppressed university.

The earliest arms of France were in three frogs (crapauds), which were figured on the shield of the mythical Pharamond. They appear again on the banner of Clovis in the tapestry at Rheims cathedral, representing the battle scenes of that monarch, who is said to have been baptised there on his conversion to Christianity. They are also found represented on a shield in Froissart's edition of Hayton's chronicle.

Seamen's Watches.

In the time division of the 24 hours of the day into watches on board ships at sea there are five watches of four hours each and two of two hours, every watch having its distinctive name. Beginning at noon, the afternoon watch is from 12 m. to 4 p. m.; first dog watch, 4 p. m. to 6 p. m.; second dog watch, 6 p. m. to 8 p. m.; night watch, 8 p. m. to 12 midnight; middle watch, 12 midnight to 4 a. m.; morning watch, 4 a. m. to 8 a. m.; forenoon watch, 8 a. m. to noon.

Unusual Family Record.

A man astonished a friend a few days ago saying casually that one of his sisters was buried a hundred years ago! As his own age was sixty-five, the case needed an explanation, which he gave. The sister buried in 1819 was the first of a family of 22 children, and she died in early infancy. The man was the youngest member of the family and was born in 1854, 35 years after his sister.—London Chronicle.

One of our eminent and doubtless reliable statisticians announces that there is only one chance in 29,989 that one's house will ever burn down and yet we suppose lots of girls who would be much more comfortable in outing flannel nightgowns are wearing their crepe de chine ones regularly, on the possibility that it might.—Ohio State Journal.

New Grade of Rubber.

Chrysil, a new high grade rubber, is vulcanized without difficulty. It is produced by the Chrysothamnus, or rabbit bush, a genus of shrubs yielding in different species from 1.93 to 2.83 per cent, and in one individual plant as high as 6.57. Of Chrysothamnus nauseosus, the chief species, 22 varieties are known, 12 of them containing chrysil. The plants are large shrubs, maturing in six or eight years, with an average weight of four to six pounds, and abound in many parts of North America. The rubber occurring in the cells and not as a latex concentrates near the soil line.

A Strike.

"I'll show 'em," said the hen as she kicked the porcelain egg out of the nest.

"They can't make a brick layer out of me."—Carnegie Puppet.

Wedding Rings Use Much Gold.

More than 7,000 pounds of pure gold, says an authority, are required each year to supply the wedding rings for brides.

Pycherley is a hard-hearted man. The spirit of Christmas never enters his body; and, indeed, if he has any particularly unpleasant intelligence to convey, he generally manages to save it up for Christmas time.

The kiss is a part of numberless superstitions. The Germans believe a charm against lightning is effected by making three crosses before you and kissing the ground. The French kiss the cards before the game begins to bring luck in gambling. Pliny seriously advised a man suffering with toothache to kiss a mule to stop the pain. The Danes believe bad luck is turned away if you kiss the piece of bread you drop on the floor. They also believe it bad luck if the first person you meet in the morning is an old woman; nevertheless you can ward off the consequences by giving her a kiss.

Invisible Inks.

Of the many sympathetic inks which become visible on exposure of the writing to heat, following are a few examples: Weak solution of copper nitrate or perchloride of copper, strong solution of caustic potash, the juices of lemon onion and other vegetables. Milk or buttermilk used on unglazed paper with a clean new pen will not show; a hot flatiron is the best way to show it up.

CROUP

Croup comes like a thief in the dead of the night when least expected. It may take hours for a doctor to arrive, and immediate treatment is necessary. That is why the careful mother always keeps a bottle of Glessco in the home. Glessco has stood the test of time. It has been used in millions of homes for years. It is a reliable remedy. Safe and sure in action, immediate in relief.

Glessco is guaranteed to relieve an attack of croup in fifteen minutes without vomiting. It carries the offending mucous out of the system and does not upset the stomach.

Ask your doctor about Glessco. Your druggist will tell you that there is more of it sold every year than all other croup medicines. It costs 50c per bottle and is worth ten times as much in time of need.

Ingenious Sun Ovens.

In some tropical regions, where coal is scarce—as in Egypt, the Punjab and the African Karoo—teakwood boxes blackened inside, fitted with glass tops and properly insulated, are in common use for cooking, baking and other purposes. These sun ovens, which have the advantage of eliminating cost of fuel, afford a temperature of 240 to 275 degrees Fahrenheit in the middle of the day. Provided with a mirror for a reflector they will run up to 290 degrees.—Milwaukee Journal.

You've Got to Hit the Halibut.

The halibut feeds on the bottom of the sea, and when he is hooked he allows himself to be drawn toward the top without very much of a protest. The struggle commences the instant his nose emerges from the water, and the possibility of a fight is anticipated by a hard blow on the head. This blow must be sure and hard, for if there is any compassion for the fish he is as good as gone, for any opportunity to struggle means its escape.

Slavery in Scotland.

Less than a century and a quarter ago the workers in the coal mines and salt mines of Scotland were legally bound to the places in which they were employed, were bought and sold with them, and when they attempted to escape were pursued, arrested and returned. Their children, if once employed, became subject to the same servitude.

House 1,550 Years Old.

The English castle, Saltwood, near Hythe, which is at present "to let," has an interesting history. It was built by Olsc, son of Hengist, in 448, and rebuilt by Henry de Essex, the king's standard-bearer, about 1100. Thomas a Becket's murderers met there in 1162 and laid their plans. In King John's reign it was the residence of the archbishop of Canterbury.

If You Fail, She'll Clean It.

The comments made by ladies upon pipes often shows a curious unawareness of the true virtue and function of that soothing implement. Said Titania, when we exhibited our magnificent new briar. "That's lovely! How nice it smells. Now do try to keep it clean."—New York Evening Post.

Real Sea Monster.

According to scientists of the Smithsonian institute the record fish was captured at Miami, Fla., after a fight lasting 39 hours. Five harpoons and 150 bullets were required to subdue the monster. It was a whale shark and weighed 30,000 pounds, its liver alone weighing 1,700 pounds.

Variety in Bibles.

A collection of 114 Bibles published between 1537 and 1666 was recently sold at Sotheby's in London. It included samples of the Great Bible, 1540, the "Bug," 1549; the Genevan, or "Breeches," 1560, and a "Pear" Bible, 1653.

Working of Pearl.

There are two kinds of shells used in the manufacture of small articles, the porcelaneous and the nacreous. The former are extremely hard and can be worked only with the apparatus used by the lapidary. The latter are more generally used and may be sawed, filed and turned with some facility. The pieces should be roughed out on a common grindstone. After turning they should be smoothed with pumice stone and water, and polished with rotten stone with sulphuric acid slightly diluted.

"Macaroni Verse."

This is a kind of humorous verse in which, with Latin as a base, words of other languages are introduced, using Latin inflections and constructions. The term was selected since it implies a mixture of languages—comparable with the mixture of ingredients found in a dish of macaroni. The name is sometimes applied to verses which are merely a mixture of Latin and the unadulterated vernacular of the writer. This type of verse has long been known in Italy.

Starting Slips.

More house plants are grown from slips than from seeds. To do this take a branch half ripe and cut a slit three inches long. Take off all the leaves except the upper two and root it well in wet sand several inches thick, putting one and one-half inches of the slip under the sand. Keep this thoroughly moist. When the roots begin to grow put your plant, with its sand, into a pot provided with other soil. Some slips, such as oleander and ivy, will root in water.

Illumination of Manuscripts.

The art of painting manuscripts with miniatures and ornaments is an art of the most remote antiquity. The Egyptian papyri containing portions of the Ritual or "Book of the Dead," are ornamented with drawings and colored pictures. The Persians, Hindus and Chinese have illuminated manuscripts with great beauty, none of which compete with those of the western nations in antiquity.

An employer remarks that a good deal of "roasting" seems necessary to get things well done.—Boston Transcript.

The Awe in Audience.

It does not necessarily follow that because an actor or actress is affected that an audience will be likewise.—Cartoons Magazine.

Tracing Cobra Poison.

The action of cobra poison injected into a frog can be traced even when dilutions of one in ten millions are used.

Oilcloth Hint.

If you use oilcloth on a kitchen table, place under it some soft paper and the table covering will wear twice as well.

Symbols Had Meaning.

The shoes and sandals of the Greeks, Romans, Egyptians and Jews were ornamented with horns, crescents and other representations of the moon. At marriage ceremonies the custom of casting the shoe was combined with the throwing of flowers and various kinds of grain. These symbols and offerings seem to indicate the propitiation of a god, probably the deity who presided over productiveness.

Fodder Hung in Trees.

In Cashmere a novel method of putting fodder away for winter use is in vogue. The chief industry of the people consists in raising fine wool and in making this into fabrics which have carried the name of the country all over the world. As in winter snow lies some five or six yards deep, supplies of hay are hung among the branches of trees, where they are easily reached by the flocks of sheep.

A Pastry Elephant.

A little boy in school No. 41 had the words enemy, elephant, dough and elbow to write in sentences. That evening he was called by one of his friends to play ball. He was so anxious to get out and play that he put all his words into one sentence, which read: "The enemy elephant had some dough on his elbow."—Indianapolis News.

Sick Room Hint.

When patient's mouth becomes dry and parched during the night, a piece of orange held in the mouth from time to time will quench thirst. The orange should be cut into small pieces and put within easy reach of the invalid. It will be easier to handle than a glass of water and is more refreshing.

Woman's Final Test.

Women seem to get along in straight business lines about as well as men, and all that remains before throwing the cloak of absolute equality about their shoulders is to see whether they can make as much out of a bankruptcy as a man can.—Kansas City Star.

Where Church Is Popular.

The Christian aborigines of Yunnan like lengthy church services. A Sunday morning service in Sapushan, Yunnan province, has been known to comprise eleven hymns, eight prayers, three sermons and the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

A Vacuum Cleaner.

A little five-year-old, seeing her mother sweeping in the old-fashioned way, asked: "Mother, why don't you get one of those back-room cleaners like Mrs. Jones got?"—Boston Transcript.

"UP IN MARY'S ATTIC" AT COYLE THEATRE

At the Coyle theatre for two days beginning Monday, March 21, will be shown the much-heralded comedy thunderbolt, "Up in Mary's Attic." The picture is filled with great human interest, and also with adventure and thrills. It contains every element of human appeal, all going to make it the greatest farce comedy ever screened. The scene of the picture is laid in a fashionable girls' seminary, and Eva Novak as Mary gets into some ticklish positions in trying to conceal her marriage. It is a comedy which contains something for everyone.

More than 10,000 residents of Pittsburgh and vicinity are said to have been victims of the alleged fraudulent activities of two suit clubs, officials of which were arraigned in Central Police Court at Pittsburgh on Thursday.

Louis Hymans, of Cleveland, former vice-president of the Thomas Tailoring company, was held for court under $1,000 bail on a conspiracy charge, and was held under $6000 bail for further investigation on a similar charge. Henry Sturmberger, of the Economy Merchandise company, was held under $1,000 bail for further investigation. Warrants have been issued for several other officers of the two companies who are said to have left this district.

OFFICER SHOT BY HIGHWAY ROBBERS

Frank Lazarn, aged 27, employed as a special officer by the Hillman Coal company, at their mine located about ten miles from Brownsville, was brought to the Brownsville General hospital on Tuesday night in a dying condition, and the State police in the New Salem district are scouring the country for two negroes who shot the officer who went to the rescue of a plant workman who was being robbed by the highwaymen. At an early hour neither of the highwaymen had been captured, but the authorities felt certain they had drawn a net about them, making improbable their getaway.

The holdup and shooting occurred about 10:45 Tuesday night. The victim was an employe of the plant who was hit over the neck with a blackjack, and his assailants opened fire on Lazarn when the screams of the victim of the hold-up attracted the officer to the scene. Lazarn's left lung was penetrated by a 38-calibre bullet, and when he reached the hospital he was in a state of coma. He bled profusely, although Wednesday morning he was reported as resting somewhat easier.
